To Whom It May Concern:

Neighborhood Restaurants has been utilizing Eye Spy Spotter Services for over three years now. When we made the transition, we were using a nationwide service and we were reluctant that a local service could handle our account. Through a number of interviews with different companies we selected Eye Spy for a couple of key reasons. In meeting with Michael, it became evident that his idea of good service paralleled our thinking and he had an abundance of experience in the industry. In addition, Eye Spy was of sufficient size to discreetly handle our accounts, but not so big that control and training can become an issue. The other appeal was the ability to build a format and a procedure that fit exactly into what we wanted. These qualities are difficult to find in the national firms as well as the smaller ma and pa spotting operations.

It did take a lot of extra work initially to model the format to our needs and continues to require some time to time maintenance; however, it has proven well worth it and resulted in what we consider a mutually beneficial partnership with Eye Spy. If there are problems and there always are, Eye Spy is quick to remedy them and accept full responsibility. It's hard to ask for much more than that.

In summary, we feel strongly that our Eye Spy service more than pays for itself with improved service, improved product, stricter adherence to company policies and improved employee integrity.

Respectfully,

Todd Goldman
